PHILOSOPHY LEFT....

The King's horses and the King's men last Saturday couldn't pull 114's serve in at the Waco Open.

But the Milam area doubles team of Diane Pyle-Jo Middleton went to the women's finals Sunday before losing to a Bryan-College Station team, 6-4, 6-2.

Bill Cooke, of Rockdale, and another newspaperman, Don Coppedge, of Waxahachie, fared a bit better, getting to the third round in men's 35s before defeat, 6-1, 6-4.

A complete report on Milam area entries is in sports.

114 - 114 - 114

You turn philosophical after a day like Saturday.

On the Sul Ross Courts, a Dallasite who was second seed in Waco 18s beat me 6-2, 6-2 in a 10:30 match.

At 11:45 who should be waiting patiently at Baylor Courts but Joe Stephens, Texas No. 1 in men's 45s and Waco fourth seed in men's 35s. It was a quick men's 35s match, 6-0, 6-1.

As far as I know he is still in Waco winning every division he entered, which was men's 35s, and men's 45s singles and men's 45s doubles.

The Houston player and a partner won men's 45 doubles by default; he was playing a split set final with Waco's Grady Gordon for men's 45 singles title Monday and was headed for the finals in men's 35s singles.

But I was not done enough Saturday.

Herb Payne, a Waco junior college tennis candidate, and I met a duo from Fort Worth Saturday afternoon, to lose again in three sets.

114 - 114 - 114 -

I suppose you might say tennis helps keep you in shape, which in my case was flat last Saturday. There's always another day.

114 - 114 - 114 -

This bit of tennisana should alert people to the improving calibre of the game in Central Texas. Central Texas College, Killeen, won the National Junior College title; Mary-Hardin Baylor has a Finnish Davis Cupper and two Johannesburg, South Africans and a Killeen Japanese-American yet to lose a 1973 dual match and a Texas-ranked woman's player in Sharon Hill, who won the Waco Open women's singles.

It is another way of saying additional tennis facilities in Cameron, which are slowly developing, and in Belton and Temple and Rockdale are needed.

Tennis is about the only individual sport you can go out and play for an hour and go back to work or to the house or to the classroom or wherever.

After courts and backstops are available, it costs relatively little to play. Three tennis balls cost about $3 and last several sets or several days of practice. Beginners' rackets cost about $10. Good rackets cost from $25 to $35, strung, and last several seasons. Shoes and outfit are another $20 or $25.

Compare these with the cost of golf, any kind of concentrated game or cast fishing, deer hunting or bird hunting or any other individual sport except handball.

It also teaches the philosophy of looking to another day.

Calf Draws Crowds As Eyes Change Color

B. F. Angell of Brazoria, formerly of Cameron, says he got more than he bargained for when he bought a calf in a South Texas auction.

The young heifer has extraordinary eyes that change color from light blue, to dark blue, to different shades of green, to brown. The color change takes place when the calf turns her head, or sometimes even as she blinks her eyes.

Angell said he first noticed the phenomenon while loading the calf following the auction. Doubting he had really seen what he thought he had, he asked a companion to take a look at the heifer. When word spread that the two men were watching a calf's eyes change color, they soon had a big part of the auction crowd gathered around the trailer.

Angell said the calf had created a problem. People come to his home at all hours wanting to see the animal. Finally he decided to let all the curious see her one day, hoping that would relieve him of the constant callers--prove to the "doubting Thomasas" that the eyes did change color.

At a parking lot in Brazoria crowds came to view the calf, some lingering all day. One veterinarian speculated that cataracts caused the color change and Angell says the calf sees perfectly at times and at other times is almost totally blind.

He isn't sure what he will do with the animal. He has had one offer from a traveling show and several friends have suggested that he write Ripley's Believe it or Not. He said if the calf isn't sold soon he may bring it to Cameron to prove his honesty to more "doubting Thomases" here.

County Unaffected By Broiler Problems

It seems that the killing of those broiler chicks in East Texas is not going to affect Milam County, unless the number killed rises drastically.

"As far as Milam County is concerned, I see no effect from those broiler chicks being drowned. That's just one isolated case that got a lot of publicity," said Leo Fuchs, owner of Ideal Poultry Breeding Farms.

"If they hadn't killed them, the producer would have had to take a loss. With the price freeze, feed is frozen at its peak price. Feed is the main cost in your broilers," said Fuchs. "When the President announced the freeze, the prices of feed and broilers were not aligned."

Fuchs went on to explain that "Ideal breeds chicks, but we deal mainly in eggs, not broilers. Therefore there cannot be that much change during the 60 day period."

Louis Elley of Hornung Hatcherey agreed with Fuchs, saying that he could see no real effect on Milam County. "We mainly sell baby chicks for personal use. In fact, this year more than ever before, we're selling more baby chicks to people who plan to raise their own."

Elley attributed the increase in baby chick sales to the consumer's focus on meat prices and the meat boycott. "People are more interested in producing for themselves. For the future, specifically next year, I can forsee an even larger increase in our baby chick sales, commented Elley.

Fuchs went on to explain that the "man who killed those chicks figured he would lose less money by killing them than by raising them for broilers. Feed is just too high, and the price of broilers too low. Eggs, on the other hand, had been rising gradually for several weeks before the freeze. That's why egg prices and feed prices are closer in line than broiler prices and feed prices. That puts the egg producers in a better situation."

The turkey industry does not seem to be caught in the same bind as the broiler industry. However, spokesman for the turkey industry pointed out the price freeze imposed by Nixon could not help the industry because as a price control, it is counter productive. Producers will analyze more closely their cost situation before putting in poults. There could be fewer poults placed as a result of high feed prices.

Major Company Seeks Workers In Milam Area

A major manufacturing company is considering locating a new facility in Cameron within the next 90 days providing skilled labor is available, according to the Cameron Industrial Foundation.

Needed are mechanics, structural layout, welders, industrial electricians, structural fitters, and trainees.

Interested workers may complete a coupon featured in an advertisement on page 6 and mail it to the CIF.

'Town Hall' Meeting Set

A "town hall" meeting is being planned to be held at Methodist Fellowship Hall Thursday, July 19, at 7:30 p.m. according to an announcement from the Urban Renewal Agency.

A. W. McCullin, UR executive director, said the purpose of the meeting is "to discuss Cameron's future, to hear from citizens and invite them to help the Planning Commission as we plan and make recommendations to the Mayor and City Council for Cameron's future."

The Planning Commission, Mayor and City Council will advise Cameron citizens regarding government programs, general revenue sharing, and how this money will be spent by the Council to serve the needs of Cameron.

Also open to discussion will be possible new programs and codes and ordinances.

"The Mayor and Council as well as the Planning Commission will be on hand to advise with you, and to answer your questions," McCullin said.

"This is your opportunity to get involved in the future of your city, so please by present July 19 with us," he concluded.

Vandals Ransack Country Club, Escape Police

The Cameron Country Club was broken into about 1:15 a.m. Tuesday morning with an undetermined amount of damage done.

Vandals gained entry by breaking a side window. They ransacked the building, broke into the cigarette machine and loaded beer, candy bars, and cigarettes into trash cans to be taken away. However, the vandals only moved the trash cans out the door before city police arrived on the scene. The vandals escaped allegedly running down the fairway.

Sheriff Carl Black said that he has called on finger print men from the Dept. of Public Safety to finger print the vandalized building.

Young Lady Becomes Farmer

By Kathryn Kahler

Wouldn't you consider any young lady who helps milk a herd of 54 cows twice a day, who shovels manure from the holding pen barefoot everyday, who drives the tractor for hay haulers, who takes the cows out to pasture and gathers them in everyday, who gives cows their treatments, and who helps out with the housework, cooking, and a two year old little girl quite an industrious young lady?

Brenda McAdams, a sophmore at Texas A&M University, is this young lady. Being a "city girl", she wanted the experience of working on a farm so she is spending the summer working on the S. C. Blaney dairy farm at Ben Arnold.

The Blaneys were looking for someone to help them this summer. Brenda heard about the Blaneys and wrote them a letter. Says Brenda, "I didn't expect to hear from them at all. I was sure they were looking for a guy, but I thought I'd try."

Actually, the Blaneys were looking for a boy, but when Brenda wrote they began considering a girl.

Brenda, a slender blonde, and Mrs. Blaney run the dairy farm while Mr. Blaney does the heavy work and hauls hay. Mrs. Blaney says "The cows seem to milk better for women. And the work isn't hard because it's almost completely automated. We'd read in several magazines that many dairies were being run by women, and were quite successful. So we decided to try it."

Brenda's day starts about 6 a.m. when she and the Blaney's two year old daughter Shannon get up, and go to the barn. Mr. and Mrs. Blaney, who start their day about two hours before Brenda and Shannon, get things ready at the dairy. While Brenda and Mrs. Blaney milk, Shannon plays with her toys and talks to the cows or an occasional frog.

When they finish milking around 8:30, Brenda, who doesn't look like the usual farm hand, still has to clean the pens and let the cows out.

Brenda's work is not over because they milk the cows again in the afternoon. Everything is repeated. In addition to the cows, Brenda occasionally drives the tractor while Mr. Blaney hauls hay. Last week Brenda was driving the tractor and decided to sit on some hay in the wagon while the men piled hay into it. "I fell along with about thirty bales of hay. Thank goodness I wasn't hurt."

In addition to learning about farm duties, Brenda has also learned to put up squash, beets, beans and pickles. She and Mrs. Blaney take care of their large home, cooking and cleaning house in between milking cows and other farm duties.

Before coming to the Blaney's farm, Brenda was a nurse's aid in a Bryan hospital. "This job is nothing like the hospital where I would work eight hours and then the rest of the time was my own. Here I put in nearly an 18 hour day. About the only thing I don't like is the lack of time I have for myself. I enjoy being alone."

Brenda writes poetry as a hobby. "Right now I have several pieces in mind. I just need some time to be by myself and write. Here in the country is the perfect place to write because it's so peaceful."

Brenda's other hobbies include scuba diving, swimming, riding horses, playing chess, singing and playing with her two dogs, Bho and Pappy. She brought Bho and Pappy with her to the farm. "Pappy loves to chase the cows. It's quite a change from my apartment in Bryan," she laughed.

The Blaneys seem to be enjoying Brenda and according to Mr. Blaney, "It's working out real good. We can use her all around -- either down at the barn or in the house. We just try to enjoy ourselves while we're working."

Dairy farming is new for the Blaneys too. They moved to Ben Arnold and took over the dairy in December after living in Houston.

Brenda was also from Houston, before going to A&M as a pre-med and zoology major. She will return to classes about August 20. Until then, she will be one of the only girl farm helpers in this area.

PART OF Brenda McAdams' duties as a "summer farmer" for the S. C. Blaneys includes gathering up the cattle and moving them to the holding pen. To help her she rides one of the Blaney's ponies, George.

Welcome To New-Old Town...

Welcome.

Things are modernizing in Cameron at an increasing pace.

And it is timely to begin at least a monthly welcome to newcomers in this community. Newcomers will find real progress, not mere change going on here.

Downtown, around residential areas, surrounding city limits, industrial park--all are seeing continuing construction that is based on growth need, not inflationary spiral.

Cameron and Milam County are aware of basic minimums, like an expanding CISD system, which grow to meet basic needs, like better education plants, better amenities, like parks and tennis courts.

So welcome, newcomers. Not all that you see is new only to you. Lifetime natives acknowledge they have never seen the like of it here.

Which is another way of saying we're all in this new-old town together.

Nothing To Stick To...

Real class is not only distinction; it's a fact.

One cannot sophisticate it nor mock it up. It only occurs under extreme pressure or shows after the pressure is lifted.

And it just doesn't happen. The great three-year-old, Secretariat, is one of a line of thoroughbred champions who happened to have the physical size and heart to outrun, and with incredible ease, every horse this side of Arabia.

Not comparing horses to people, but Secretariat was the kind of champion who would let out without coaxing or whipping by the jockey. The stuff was there.

That is another name for class: stuff. Without it, a veneer has nothing to stick to.

'HELP ME CARRY THE SHOPPING LISTS!'

Decision Due On Gas

By Barry Wheeler

PERTH, AUSTRALIA Reuter--By the end of 1973, the decision may be made on whether or not natural gas is to be drawn up from beneath the inhospitable waters off northwest Australia and shipped to energy-hungry industries abroad.

Nearly a decade after exploration started on the continent's northwest shelf, planners backed by an international consortium hope to be able to come to some preliminary decisions.

K.F. Wilson, director of Woodside-Burmah Oil, says: "Toward the end of the year we hope to have progressed from the study work to discussions with government sufficiently to make preliminary decisions."

Such decisions would concern investment and the feasibility of establishing rigs, pipelines, and shore facilities to process the fuel.

Wilson is also executive chairman of B.O.C. of Australia, the wholly-owned subsidiary of Woodside-Burmah and the operating arm of the Consortium. The partners in the wells being drilled in the shelf are Woodside-Burmah, which has a 50 per cent interest, and Shell Development (Australia), B. O. Petroleum Development Australia, and Cal-Asiatic Oil, which have equal shares of the other 50 per cent.

As the search for oil and gas continues, the most promising potential appears to be for natural gas, which would be shipped in liquidied form to energy users in the United States and Japan.

Liquified natural gas is regarded as one answer, even if a short-term one in the era before nuclear and solar energy, to the problem of limiting pollution.

In addition, because of its "shrinking" properties, it can be transported relatively easily--though expensively-to overseas markets.

Natual gas can be shipped in vast quantities because, when sub-jected to temperatures of minus 161 degrees centigrade at atmospheric pressure, it liquifies and occupies a liquid volume 600 times smaller than in its gaseous state.

But, Wilson told a press seminar, Wooside-Burmah faces "an immense evaluation problem" in the two northwest-shelf gas fields.

The fields are abou: 80 miles offshore, beneath 400 feet of water in an area regularly battered by cyclones.

The Lonely Heart

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

I guess at the top of a long list of things I don't understand and never expect to is international relations, especially summit meetings.

As I recall the events of the past few years, President Nixon first went to Red China. Then, to keep things in balance, he went to Communist Russia. Russia and China are nervous about each other and you con't visit one without visiting the other.

Last week Chairman Brezhnev visited the U.S., and as soon as he left Washington announced Kissinger would go to China to reassure that country everything is still all right.

When he left here, Brezhnev weant to Paris to assure President Pompidou that Russia wasn't making any deals with the U. S. at France's expense. Now won't he have to come back over here to assure us he didn't make any deals with France?

This thing could go on forever, wity leaders circling from summit to summit reassuring each other everything is like it was the last time around.

As a sidelight I have been keeping score on the gifts exchanged at these summit meetings and so far I believe Brezhnev is ahead. That is, when Mr. Nixon went to Moscow he brought Mr. Brezhnev a two-toned Cadillac. Mr. Brezhnev gave him a small 27-foot boat. In China Mr. Nixon gave those folks some porcelain birds, four redwood trees and two muskoxen. When Mr. Brezhnev visited the U. S. last week President Nixon gave him a Lincoln Continental and a $12,000 hand-made rifle. If Mr. Kissinger on his trip reassurance to China takes say a box of Christmas cards, a few firecrackers and a calendar, the Chinese may start scratching their heads. Mr. Brezhnev visited France, Mr. Pompidou gave him two cars, a Citroen-Mazerati and a Renault 16, whatever those are.

As I say, I have no idea what the summit meetings have resulted in, especially if one country or the other loses the papers they've been signing, but so far the score is: Mr. Brezhnev, four automobiles; Mr. Nixon a small boat; the Chinese, four trees and two muskoxen; and France, a pat on the back. The tenser you are the more you get.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Opening Daughter's Mail

Eighteen-year-old Phyllis stalled so long in paying for a dress that the store's collection department decided to get tough. They fired off a nasty letter to Phyllis' home, where she lived with her parents.

But instead of paying the bill, she filed suit against the store for defamation of character.

"I was so mortified," she told the court. "My parents opened the letter and read all those awful things about me."

However, the court said the store could not fairly have expected the letter to be read by anyone else. Denying Phyllis' claim, the court said it is simply not customary nowadays for parents to open the mail of an 18-year-old girl.

When should you assume that a letter you send may be read by someone other than the addressee? This question, which is sometimes crucial in a defamation suit, is usually answered on the basis of "reasonable foreseeability"—as in the above case.

One correspondent tried something tricky. He wrote several scurrilous letters to a neighbor, but mailed them to the addresses of other people on the block. And he left the envelopes unsealed.

Each of the recipients peeked at the contents before passing the letter along. This was grounds, a court ruled afterward, for holding the letter writer liable for making his statements public. The court felt he had not only expected but actually counted on human curiosity to work just as it did.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

PROMISED GASOLINE MADE FROM WATER

Rep. Craig Hosmer (Calif., ". . . I originally read the item many years ago. . . Mrs. J. D. Henderson of Costa Mesa, Calif., found it in her files as it was carried by the Des Moines Register. . ." (The condensed article follows):

Washington, D.C.—The story seems like a myth, but it is recorded in the U.S. naval institute proceedings, an official record and the navy in 1916 was so convinced that gasoline could be made out of water that it was willing to pay $2,000,000 for the process.

Here is the official version as written down by Captain E. P. Jessop, then senior engineering officer at the New York navy yard. He records that a Portuguese named John Andrews came to the engineering laboratory of the New York navy yard where he poured water from a navy bucket into the fuel tank of a navy motor boat engine, then took a small phial from his pocket and dropped 6 or 7 drops of a greenish fluid into the tank. Then he said, "Start the engine."

The inventor had not examined the engine or altered it in any way. It sputtered a bit at first, then settled down to work and consumed every drop of fuel in the tank, developing 75 percent of its rated horsepower.

Next day the experiment was repeated with salt water. This time, to make sure there was no deception, the mixture was made in a room entirely bare of furniture. Again the inventor poured water into the gasoline tank, mixed a few drops of green liquid with it, the engine started and did not even sputter. It settled down at once, developing 75 percent of its rated horsepower.

Next, Inventor Andrews was taken to Washington for a demonstration before the navy's bureau of engineering. It was so convincing that the navy asked to buy his invention. The price asked was $2,000,000. The navy countered by offering to put $2,000,000 in the bank in escrow, the money to be paid when he had taught ten naval experts to mix the fuel. Andrews refused the offer, saying he wanted cash. This made the navy skeptical. They hesitated, and a day or two later the inventor disappeared. He has never been heard of since.

Ham Helps Stretch Budget by Providing More Than One Meal

One reason ham is a favorite of the economy-minded woman is because it goes a long, long way. After making its first grand table appearance, its budget-stretching leftovers mean more meals that otherwise would have to come from a new meat purchase.

Next time you have ham leftover from dinner, couple it in a casserole with lima beans and cream-style corn and crown with corn muffin batter before baking. This southern-style one-dish meal rates high in appeal.

When shopping for ham, be sure to read the label to determine if it's the "fully-cooked" or "cook-before-eating" type and roast to degree recommended, using a meat thermometer, advises Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Ham and Corn—Southern Style

3 cups diced, cooked ham
1 package (10 ounces) frozen lima beans, cooked
1 can (16 ounces) cream-style corn
2 tablespoons grated onion
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
1 package (8½ ounces) corn muffin mix

Combine ham, lima beans, corn, onion and mustard. Cook until heated through. Pour into a greased 2-quart baking dish. Prepare corn muffin mix as directed on package and pour batter over top of ham mixture. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) until golden brown, 20 to 30 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. Boneless pork loin roast or boneless pork loin roll.
Q. How is it identified?
A. It comes from the boned loin section and is made by tying together either the center portions of two loins, or two portions of the rib half (including center, if desired) of one loin, or two halves of one loin. Each slice of the carved roast contains two loin eye muscles.
Q. How is it prepared?
A. By roasting. Place roast on rack in open pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) to an internal temperature of 170°F. Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound for a 3 to 4-pound roast; 30 to 35 minutes per pound for a 4 to 5-pound roast. Roast may be brushed with sauce or glaze during the last 30 minutes of cooking time. This is an ideal roast for cooking on the rotisserie of an outdoor unit.

Leg of Pork Provides Meat for Many Diners

Planning a spring feast for family or friends? A boneless leg of pork, whether roasted in the oven or rotating on the outdoor rotisserie, provides plenty for flavor-packed meat for many diners to enjoy.

Although it's big, this roast is no burden to cook and carve when it has been boned, rolled and tied, according to Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Roast Leg of Pork

10 to 14-pound rolled boneless leg of pork (fresh ham)

To roast in oven: Place on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is in the center of the largest muscle but not in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) until thermometer registers 170°F. Allow 24 to 28 minutes per pound or a total of 3½ to 4½ hours for roasting.

Weed Field Day Set At Texas A&M

A weed field day is set for July 10 at Texas A&M University.

Dr. E. F. Eastin of the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station said visitors will see herbicide evaluation test pilots involving such crops as corn, sorghum, cotton and soybeans. Of special interest will be nutsedge control.

The public is invited, Eastin said. Activities begin at 8:30 a.m. in front of the Agronomy Field Laboratory northwest of the main campus.

Freeze Brings Changes In State's Poultry Industry

A poultry science professor with the Texas A&M University System said today the President's 60-day national retail price freeze is bringing about some major changes in the state's poultry industry that will mean shorter food supplies for consumers.

The poultry price-squeeze shows the flaw in the freeze, Dr. W. F. Krueger, professor and head of A&M's Poultry Science Department said.

"Agricultural commodities are effectively boxed in by retail price ceilings, although the farm commodities do not have ceilings imposed on them at the farm level," Krueger added.

The industry's output costs weren't frozen, but the wholesale selling price was. This has resulted in some poultry producers destroying chicks and eggs as the price freeze and costs ensure losses, Krueger explained.

"Over the past six months, ingredients for poultry feeds have risen more than 100 percent. Factors affecting these skyrocketing feed costs have been shortages of soybeans and grains, increased fuel and transportation costs, speculation and rising credit costs, the professor, whose field is poultry breeding and management, said.

Poultry industry leaders point out that the timing of the freeze set the retail price level for chickens at its lowest point in 90 days in the week ending June 8, the base period of the freeze.

At the same time, the price of soybean meal feed shot up to about $450 a ton from about $110 a year earlier. Soybean meal is the main source of protein in the poultry ration.

"There's no question about it, poultry producers are in a dilemma and here's why," Krueger said.

"The cost of producing one pound of dressed broiler today--the total dock price--is 45.7 cents to the grower. This includes feed, chick, contract grower fees, service, processing and management costs. But he can receive only about 39 to 41 cents a pound for them at the processing dock. That's a loss of 5 to 6 cents a pound that must be absorbed.

"Today's cost of producing one pound of live turkey totals 42.8 cents. This includes the poult, feed, grower, service, transportation, insurance, fuel, depreciation and electricity costs. Turkey processors can pay no more than 36 cents a pound for the live birds.

"Production costs for a dozen eggs today average 53 cents, based on a hen producing 240 eggs per year. All poultrymen relize that many hens are under this production level, thus increasing the cost. And one must consider the fact that not all eggs are large eggs--and that medium and small eggs are less valuable. Costs involved include feed, hen, depreciation, grading and packaging, delivery, storage and interest on investment," Krueger explained.

Thus, producers are cutting back on their broiler output and turkey owners are having some of their breeding hens processed now, rather than waiting until the end of July, the normal slaughter time.

Permit Helps In Pollution Cases

How can Texas livestock and poultry feeders protect themselves against law suits because of odors?

"Get a water pollution control permit," says Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Sweeten, who specializes in animal waste management, cites recent legal action in Texas in which a cattle feedlot successfully defended itself against charges of odor-related nuisances brought by a neighboring land developer. A key factor in that trial, believes the engineer, was testimony by an expert from the Texas Water Quality Board that the feedlot operating under a "waste control order" was in compliance with state water pollution abatement requirements.

"This has a bearing on odor control because feedlot runoff holding ponds are sometimes the predominant source of feedlot odors," points out the Texas A&M University System specialist. "However, with the state testifying that the operation had met existing pollution control requirements, the jury ruled in favor of the feedlot."

What's the Beef?

If beef prices had kept pace with average per capita take-home pay during the past 20 years, consumers would be paying an average of approximately 57 cents more per pound for beef at the meat counter today than they are. Live cattle would be selling for about $73.75 per hundred weight instead of $43. By comparison, per capita income has more than doubled while the retail price of beef increased by less than 50 percent.

Ever So Gentle

When mixing ground beef with other ingredients for meat loaf, be ever so gentle. Combine the mixture thoroughly yet lightly to insure a light texture and juiciness. In shaping the loaf, press lightly or pat rather than packing solidly or spanking.

Defrosting Frozen Assets

Freezing beef offers an opportunity to take advantage of specials at the market. Cooking these frozen beef assets is easy. Beef can be defrosted in the refrigerator prior to cooking or during the cooking time. Defrosted roasts require the same time as fresh cuts, while frozen roasts need ⅓ to ½ more time to attain the degree of doneness desired. The extra time required for broiling frozen steaks varies with the surface area of the cut, the thickness and broiling temperature. Thick frozen steaks should be placed farther from the heat so they won't brown too much on the outside before attaining desired doneness inside.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

National and International Leader... Poultry Declines Noted... Vaccinate Horses Now.

Texas, already recognized as a giant in agricultural production in the nation, will become a major factor in international agriculture in the years ahead. With exports becoming an increasing part of this nation's agriculture, Texas will be a key state in supplying farm products as well as providing facilities from which commodities will be shipped.

Texas has excellent port facilities along the Gulf Coast. The Port of Houston was utilized in shipping the 400,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia. Texas now has excellent export livestock pens which will increase the state's dominance in the livestock industry.

The pens are already in use in Houston, Del Rio and Eagle Pass. Additional pens are to be built soon at Brownsville, El Paso, and Laredo.

The pens have specially designed loading and inspection chutes, concrete floors throughout, offices and laboratory space, a new hydraulic-type multi-vat for dipping animals as well as other accessories which exceed federal regulations. The pens are also covered.

"Through use of these pens, you can be assured Texas will be a leader in the world in international agriculture affairs," Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said.

The Texas Department of Agriculture is responsible for operating the pens. Texas livestock export business this year is expected to exceed $40,000,000.

Throughout the nation, Texas continues to be the number one livestock state. Texas has more than twice as many cattle and calves than the second place state. It has almost three times more beef cows than the second ranking state.

The cattle and calf production population for Texas as of Jan. 1 this year is 15,350,000 head; this is an increase of about 2,500,000 head from 1972.

Beef cows--the factory of the livestock business--numbered 6,320,000 in Texas; this compared with second place Oklahoma's 2,283,000 head.

Texas is also first in the nation in cattle on feed and first in the nation in numbers of sheep and lambs.

THE MAY hatch of egg-type chickens in Texas is down nine per cent from a month ago. The May hatch of broiler chicks is down two per cent from a month ago. The total turkey poult hatch was up eight per cent from a month ago.

Egg production in Texas during May was seven per cent below a year ago, but four per cent above a month ago.

Nationwide, egg production during May was three per cent below a year ago. Layers on hand declined four per cent from May a year ago and two per cent below April.

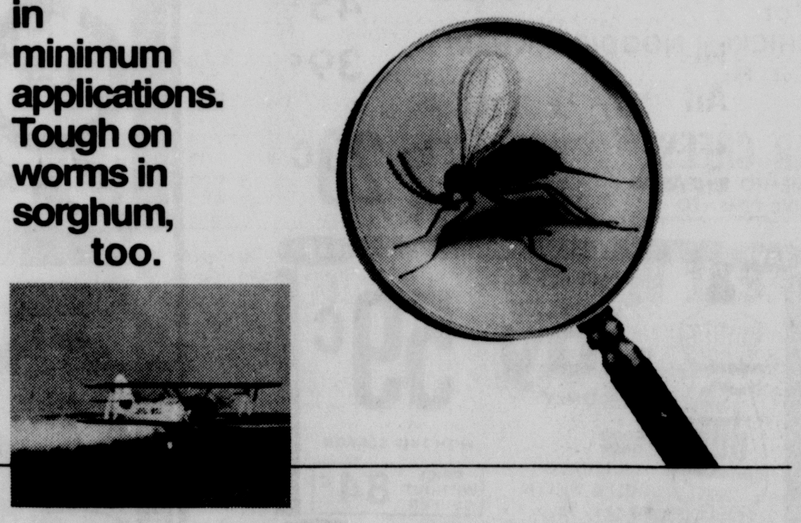
VACCINATE your horse now for the three types of equine encephalitis. The types are Eastern and Western equine encephalitis (EE and WEE) as well as Venezuelan (VEE) which ravaged horses in Texas in 1971.

The three diseases are caused by different viruses that are carried by mosquitoes, and can be transmitted to humans. Effective vaccines are available for all three. However, vaccines for EE and WEE do not protect against VEE; likewise, VEE vaccine does not protect against the other two.

Outward signs of the three diseases include depression, lack of appetite, and drowsiness. Animals may frequently grind their teeth and stagger when moving. Death is common.

Midge meets match

in minimum applications. Tough on worms in sorghum, too.



Sorghum midge can cut yields by up to a third. Then add the damage caused by armyworms, headworms, webworms, Southwestern corn borer, cutworms and stink bugs. They cost you plenty.

But SEVIMOL 4 stops them all. This free-flowing blend of molasses and SEVIN® carbaryl insecticide has sticking power that adds residual control, saves time and work and money.

Get tough on the insects that are tough on sorghum yields. But get tough sensibly... with SEVIMOL 4.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN

If you ask the average family physician to help you solve the problem of overweight, he's likely to respond with enthusiastic encouragement, and a diet program tailored to your individual health needs.

But he won't guarantee any specific weight loss, because he knows that each body type has its won way of metabolizing.

That doesn't satisfy the craving some people have for "instant beauty," so they are quickly attracted to the advertisements which claim, "Lose 20 pounds in 20 days."

Many become disillusioned when they don't shed the pounds like the "before" and "after" model whose photographs were shown in the ad.

But wait a minute:

Were those "before" and "after" pictures really of the same person? Or, was one photo taken in poor lighting while the subject slumped to increase the girth of abdomen, and the other photo taken under glamor conditions -- with tummy sucked in, chin up, and chest out?

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has received many complaints about operations of some "health studios" which specialize in claims of an almost-instant metamorphosis for the overweight person.

Through our own investigations, we have found that sometimes the photographs are misleading.

And other deceptive trade practices by some health spa operators are being uncovered in state and federal complaint follow-ups.

Owners of legitimately-operated health salons are cooperating in the investigations. And there are many of these establishments which do serve a useful and healthful purpose.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Stage Series Of Religious Conventions

One of the largest series of religious conventions in history will be staged this year by Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in New York has revealed completion of plans for 69 "Divine Victory" international assemblies in 46 countries around the world.

Charles Molohan, international travel director and tour coordinator, said in New York that hundreds of thousands of delegates are preparing to attend these giant meetings.

"For example," he said, "a total of 16,000 persons will be traveling to forty-three different countries in Central and South America, Africa, Europe, the South Pacific, the Mideast and the Far East."

Molohan said there are approximately twenty tours involved for American travelers. Four to Europe, four to the Mid east, one to the Orient, five to Africa, two to the Middle East, two to South America, one to the South Pacific, one to Hawaii and another to Puerto Rico.

"All those on tour will be going by regular commercial flights," Molohan said. "Twenty-three planes are chartered for Hawaii with 5,600 delegates involved. Twelve planes ae set for Puerto Rico with 4,100 scheduled to participate and sixteen planes to Europe with 2,800 traveling abroad.

"Additionally, there are thirty-three aircraft scheduled to come to the U.S. from Europe to attend twelve different conventions this summer," hesaid.

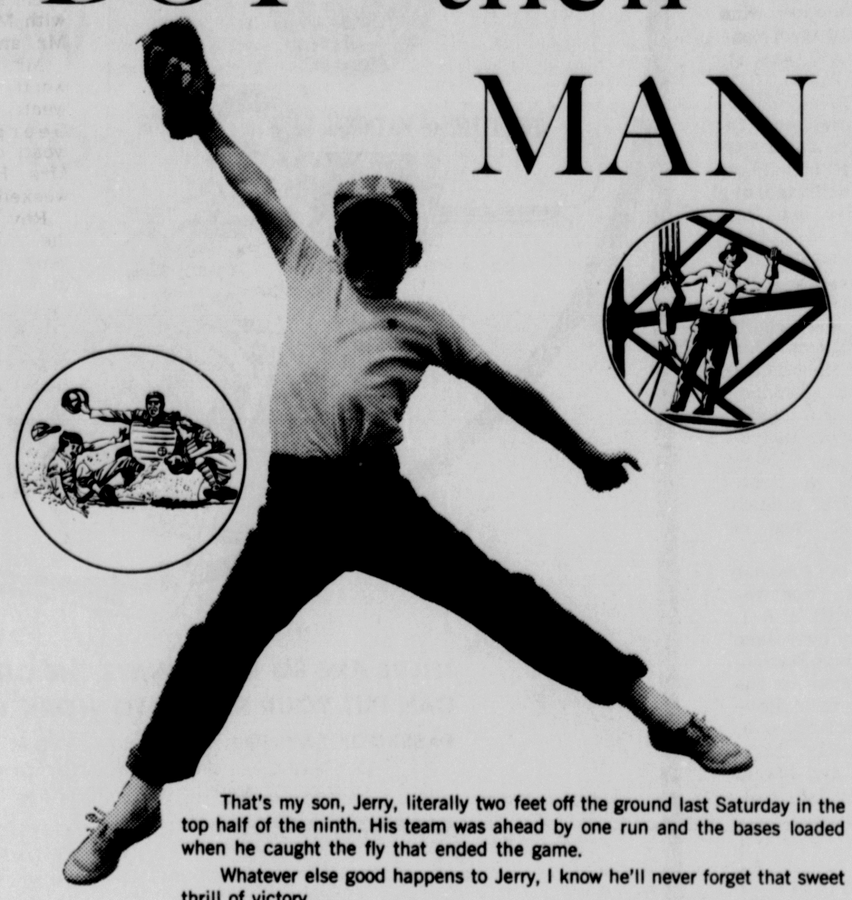
BOY---then MAN



That's my son, Jerry, literally two feet off the ground last Saturday in the top half of the ninth. His team was ahead by one run and the bases loaded when he caught the fly that ended the game.

Whatever else good happens to Jerry, I know he'll never forget that sweet thrill of victory.

Years from now, when faced with a tough situation, that memory could be the inspiration for another triumph. The things that happen to a boy do shape the man.

That's why I've always taken Jerry to our church. I want the smell of candles on the altar, the blend of voice and heart in hymn and litany, to be a part of his life. I want for him the joy that comes from understanding God.

My father did the same for me.

How about you?

THESE CAMERON FIRMS INVITE YOU TO BE A PART OF DOWNTOWN PROGRESS SUMMER OF 1973

Joys Of Summer Often Spoiled By Drownings

Summer has officially arrived in Texas, and with it comes increased opportunities of fun-time outdoor activities such as swimming and boating--and often tragedy.

Each year in Texas, an alarming number of persons die in boating and drowning accidents. Only automobile accidents claim larger number of lives in Texas.

Many, if not most, of these drownings need not happen, according to the Texas Medical Association.

TMA offers the following basic safety rules that will help to avoid a tragic water accident in your family--

1.) Learn to swim and to relax in the water.

2.) Never swim alone.

3.) Do not swim when overly tired or when the water is extremely cold.

4.) Do not overestimate your ability and endurance.

5.) Swim at protected pools or beaches under the supervision of a trained lifeguard.

6.) If a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore.

7.) Never dive into waters of unknown depth.

8.) Try new activities, such as water skiing or scuba diving, only after learning the skills from qualified instructors.

Since many families will do much of their swimming this summer in private pools, some special safety precautions are indicated--

1.) Make certain the pool is kept clean and the water chemically purified.

2.) Walk, don't run, about the pool. Horse play should be forbidden.

3.) Fence the pool and keep the gate locked to keep out small children.

4.) Keep handy rescue equipment, such as long poles and ring buoys.

5.) Keep bottles and glasses away from the concrete or metal pool deck.

TMA emphasized that good manners and common sense in boating will prevent most accidents. The rules are well known: Don't overload the boat; have life preservers for each occupant; don't stand up or change seats in a small boat while under way; keep a watchful eye out for other boats, swimmers and fishermen; and give all a comfortably wide berth. Even though the rules are known, there are still drownings because someone ignored them.

Knowning about artificial respiration and how to apply it could save a life. The mouth -to-mouth method is not very difficult, but start immediately, even in the water; the victim can survive without oxygen to the brain for only a few minutes; with the victim's face up, pull the chin forward, make certain the widepipe is clear; put your mouth over the victim's pinch shut the nose, and blow; repeat 12 or 15 times per minute; keep it up until medical help arrives.

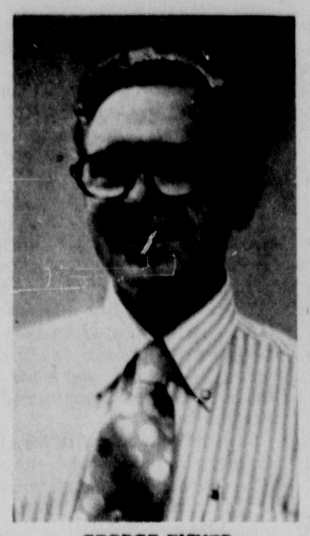
Less Than Half Beef

A 1,000-pound live steer yields only about 432 pounds of saleable beef at the meat counter. The remaining 568 pounds consists of about 385 pounds of offal, which is removed by the packer in dressing out the 615 pound carcass, and another 183 pounds of undesired fat and bone trimmed from the carcass before it reaches the meat counter in the form of retail-ready cuts.



GEORGE FISHER

George Fisher Retires From ASCS Office Position

By Lloyd Albertson

The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office here lost one of its long - time employees with the retirement of George N. Fisher on June 30. And a large number of friends and acquaintances attended a reception in his honor that was held in the ASCS office on Wednesday afternoon just prior to his retirement.

Fisher's retirement ended a career with the local office that began back in 1937.

He started as a member of the County Committee and remained with it until 1941. The country -- and agriculture -- was still in the depression, and the Agriculture Department in Washington was trying to improve the situation.

"We received a large number of new programs and were kept pretty busy putting them in effect," Fisher recalls those early days. "They were being revised all the time."

Fisher was named crop insurance supervisor and held that post until it was discontinued in 1944. In 1945 he was re-elected to the County Committee. In 1946 he accepted the position of compliance supervisor along with other responsibilities in the office.

During the years since then he has held many of the jobs in the department. Much of his work has been out in the field all over Milam County as well as in the office in Cameron.

As a result he has a wide acquaintance among farmers and ranchers and other citizens in the county.

"Several years ago I probably knew almost all of the farmers and ranchers in the county," he remarked. "But it is a little different now. All farms don't participate in the programs as much as they used to. Besides, some of the old timers have moved away, and a lot of new people are moving into the area all the time."

"Our farmers and ranchers have been very cooperative," he added. "I think we have the finest people here in the county that there are anywhere."

George Fisher and his wife Marie live on their farm on the Milano Highway in the Hoyte area south of Cameron. They have three children; Wayne, an attorney in Houston; Stanley, with the L. B. Foster Steel Company in that city; and their daughter Anne, married to Charles Schuhler, who also live in Houston and is employed by New York Life Insurance Co.

When asked what he planned to do following his retirement from the ASCS office, Fisher, who has been a weekend cattleman for some time with some farming and ranching interests, remarked:

"Well, I want to see what my cattle do from Monday to Friday, and if it is the same as on Saturday and Sunday."

THE AVIATION maintenance organization at Texas State Technical Institute recently began restoration on a World War II dive bomber, the Douglas SBD Dauntless, for the Admiral Nimitz Center in Fredricksburg. The aircraft, one of the five remaining complete models, will be a major attraction at the historical center.

TSTI Restoring WW II Bomber

A piece of history will be restored as the Aviation Maintenance Organization undertakes the overhaul of one of the five remaining dive bombers to which historians attribute the U.S. success in the Battle of Midway in the Pacific during World War 11.

The project, sponsored by the Aviation Maintenance Organization on the James Connally Campus of Texas State Technical Institute, will also double as class activity in that field.

The aviation maintenance curriculum on the Connally Campus is a two-year program approved by the Federal Aviation Administration. Graduates may find job opportunities with airlines, air charter or maintenance companies as well as other industry utilizing aircraft.

The plane, a Douglas SBD Dauntless, was purchased by a historical center. The aircraft was owned by a private citizen in San Fernando, California and was brought to the campus via LTV Co. of Grand Prairie.

After restoration, which is expected to take approximately one year, the plane will be one of the major attractions at the Admiral Nimitz Center in Fredericksburg. Douglass Hubbard, executive director of the center, said they were fortunate to find the plane and they plan to take pains in restoring it accurately. The theme of the Nimitz Center is peace.

The plane will be on exhibit suspended in a nose dive position during its bomb release.

Aviation experts termed the Douglas SBD dive bombers "slow but deadly." Maximum speed for the 1,000 horsepower engine was 250 mph.

Built in 1940, the Dauntless was replaced in service by the more modern Helldiver.

According to World War 11 historians, in four minutes on June 4, 1942, the Douglas SBD dive bombers from Enterprise and Yorktown destroyed Japan's carrier fleet and reversed the tide of battle in the Pacific.

The Aviation Maintenance Organization, headed by Larry Bewley, is planning to paint the plane the original color with the correct insignia and configurations.

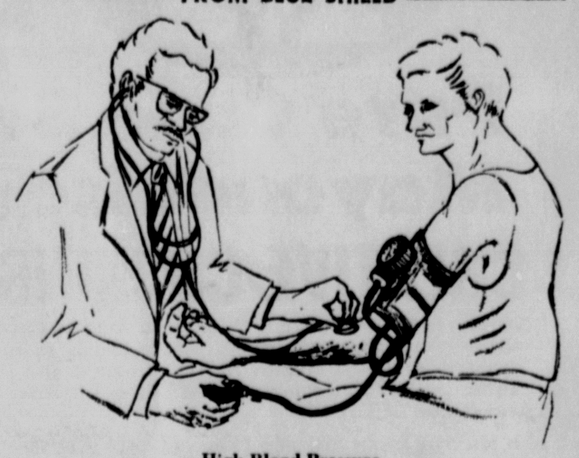
Health Hints FROM BLUE SHIELD



High Blood Pressure

The effects of high blood pressure—also known as hypertension—kill one out of every eight Americans, every year. This year alone, high blood pressure will kill 250,000 people. HBP leads to strokes, heart failure, serious kidney problems and frequently to early death.

Often referred to as "the silent killer," high blood pressure can exist without any visible symptoms for long periods of time. You can feel healthy, look terrific and experience no outward signs of tension whatsoever, because high blood pressure silently exerts mechanical tension on your circulatory system.

Statistics indicate that 23 million Americans—one out of ten adults—have high blood pressure. If you're over 50, black, or both, the odds increase.

Fortunately, high blood pressure can be easily determined and controlled. Your blood pressure can be taken in 30 seconds, painlessly, easily and inexpensively. Take advantage of the National High Blood Pressure Educational Screening Programs soon to take place in many areas. Or, consult with your family physician. Get your blood pressure taken—before your number's up.

Polynesian Pork Dish Brings Spring Spirit To Dinner Table

Looking forward to the newness and freshness that spring brings lifts the spirits. So does serving something different for dinner — something that suggests warm winds and sunny skies.

You can achieve a pleasant Polynesian atmosphere with this recipe using cubes of savory pork to advantage. It's a delightful way to bring an early spring to your table.

Cubes cut from the pork shoulder are generally a good buy, advises Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock & Meat Board.

Polynesian Pork

1½ pounds boneless pork shoulder, cut into ¾-inch cubes
1 can (13¼ ounces) pineapple chunks
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon mace
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Drain pineapple and reserve juice. Brown pork cubes in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add salt, pepper, mace, chopped onion, green pepper strips and water. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour or until done. Combine cornstarch, brown sugar, lemon juice, soy sauce and reserved pineapple juice. Pour over meat mixture and simmer 5 to 10 minutes or until sauce is thickened. Add pineapple and heat through. Serve over rice or Chinese noodles. 6 servings.

Special Pork Steaks

4 blade pork steaks, cut ½ inch thick (2 to 3 pounds)
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup apple juice
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup raisins
Flour for gravy

Brown pork steaks in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Combine salt, pepper, cinnamon, nutmeg, apple juice, onion and raisins. Add to pork steaks. Cover tightly and simmer 45 minutes or until done.

CREATIVE COOKING

Casseroles are one way to keep the food budget in line. They are sometimes more easily accepted by all family members, especially Dad, when the ingredients are left in recognizable pieces. Also, he can see how much less a nutritious casserole costs to prepare and how much fun you have creating your own recipes.

We have talked about "I Made It Up" Chicken Casserole ideas and now would like to suggest another basic guide to "Create A Casserole."

Amounts	Suggestions
1½-2 cups cooked protein food	beef, ham, poultry, eggs, cheese, fish
1 can condensed soup and ⅓-½ cup liquid	water, milk, sour cream, broth, tomato juice
1½-2 cups cooked or canned vegetables	parsley, green pepper, onion, celery
2-2½ cups cooked pasta or substitute	macaroni, noodles, spaghetti, rice, potatoes, corn
2-4 Tbsp. Topping	bread or cracker crumbs, grated cheese, crusned chips
Salt, pepper and seasonings	your family's favorite
